This is a chance to hear uplifting stories first hand, from those quietly revolutionising our food systems. We Feed The UK is a national campaign pairing photographers and poets with Britain's best custodians of soil, sea and seed. These radical collaborations are raising awareness of food production's potential to positively impact climate, biodiversity and social justice.

Scotland's Lauriston Farm and Grampian Graziers gift us tangible blueprints in urban and rural landscapes, photographed by Sophie Gerrard. The time is ripe to celebrate their efforts, in support of the grassroots revolution. Join us.
