Join us to launch the latest exhibition from national storytelling campaign, We Feed The UK. Photography by Sophie Gerrard and live poetry from Iona Lee will celebrate the women breaking ground to nourish Scotland's community, human and more-than-human.

Lauriston Farm is a 100-acre site near Edinburgh run by a majority-women workers cooperative, as a response to the lack of affordable, healthy food. Over the hills, Nikki Yoxall of Grampian Graziers collaborates with native cattle to restore the species- and carbon-rich pasture in decline across Scotland.

Their stories are local urban and rural solutions to the intertwined global crises of climate change, food security and biodiversity loss.

Sons inherit Scottish farms 85% of the time, yet over half of the UK's family farm workers are women. The Scottish government's own Women in Agriculture Taskforce concluded that their contribution can be "undervalued, downplayed or simply unseen". Let's change the face of our food systems.
